ARE YOUR NUMBERS UP?

Finding the location of an emergency quickly could make the difference between life and death. Emergency Responders often have difficulty identifying specific locations because addresses are poorly marked. A great many residences and businesses do not have their addresses posted at all. Many others have missing numbers or shrubbery and decorations obstructing their address numbers.

Important things to consider when posting addresses:

Numbers should be posted on the street side of the structure near the main entrance whenever possible, visible from both directions. This is the easiest way for responders to identify the proper address of the structure. Numbers on mailboxes can get confusing, especially when they are all on the same side of the road.

Numbers should be at least 3" high in contrasting colors and reflective. Script writing is decorative but very difficult to read accurately in a hurry.

Numbers should be placed high enough not to be covered by snow, shrubbery, or leaf accumulations. Never place any items in front of posted numbers like holiday decorations or flower arrangements.

Post numbers at the roadway/driveway. Structures farther than 100 feet from the road, located in heavily wooded lots, or on winding driveways should post their numbers by the entrance to the roadway. Numbers can be placed on mailbox posts, fence posts, or individually. Numbers should be visible from any direction traveled on the roadway.

Mobile Home Parks or Multiple Units

Address Suffixes should be posted in front of the structure (Lot 1, Lot 2, A, B, C etc).

What About At Night?

Finding addresses after dark is equally as important and usually more difficult. Use of lighted signs or reflective materials improve visibility considerably. Strategic planning to mount the address numbers close to an outside light source may be an easy solution.
